

High Frequency Bot Trading Notice

As a committed broker dedicated to ensuring a fair, transparent, and stable trading environment for all our clients, we prioritize the integrity of our trading platform. To this end, we have taken the decision not to permit the use of High Velocity Bots, including those used for High-Frequency Trading (HFT) strategies, on our platform.

This policy is guided by a thorough consideration of the impact that HFT can have on market dynamics, including the potential for creating undue volatility, the distortion of market prices, and the inadvertent facilitation of market manipulation tactics such as quote stuffing. Such strategies, while benefiting a small subset of market participants through arbitrage opportunities that exploit minuscule price differences, can undermine the fairness and efficiency of the market at large. They often disadvantage retail and institutional investors who rely on fundamental analysis and longer-term investment strategies.

Moreover, the substantial volume of trades generated by these bots can lead to an uneven playing field, where only participants with access to the most advanced technologies can compete effectively. This is contrary to our principle of providing an equitable trading experience for all our users, regardless of their size or technological capabilities.

We are also mindful of regulatory perspectives and the global trend towards scrutinizing and, in some instances, restricting HFT activities to safeguard market integrity and protect investors from systemic risks. Our policies are in alignment with these broader regulatory and industry efforts to ensure that the markets remain robust, fair, and transparent.

In fostering an environment that values the long-term health of the market and the interests of the wider investing public, we believe this policy is in the best interest of all our stakeholders. We continue to welcome and support a broad range of trading strategies that comply with our guidelines, which are designed to maintain market integrity and protect our clients' investments.

Thank you for your understanding and cooperation in adhering to this policy.
